

Forcefield Body Armour Standard Shirt and Pants

By Pat Carol #48876

I put on blue jeans and a denim jacket over the body armor. At first I did have the usual sweating but, once I got moving, the sweat was wicked away from my skin. I was very comfortable along with the confidence of feeling safe.

Specifications of the garments include: multi-sport use, constructed from BeCool™ with Humidity Discharge Function, removable armor at the elbows, shoulders and chest, RPT – Repeat Performance Technology, machine washable (with armor removed), increased perforation panels at perspiration prone areas, thumb loops for added security, and CE-approved Nitrex® armor.

AFTER AN EXTENSIVE TESTING OF THE Forcefield Body Armour, I must say I am absolutely impressed with the quality and the assurance of safety when riding my motorcycle. I had a great opportunity receiving this product at the right time. I was able to test the body armor in cold and hot climates. Welcome to northern Michigan. The weather changes in five minutes.

My first test was in the cold. I put the armor on as you would silk long johns. I did have to remove the ballistic armor from my Vanson. At first I felt that the body armor would be bulky and cumbersome. That was not the case. I rode my R100RS and upon mounting the bike, it seemed as though the body armor automatically adjusted itself to my body. It was amazingly comfortable to ride even given the stock seat on an old RS.

The outside temperature was 27 degrees. Now the old RS does not have any accessory plugs so, no Gerbings for this ride. I rode 50 miles and was amazed how warm I was. This is too good to be true. Not only do the Forcefield standard shirt and pants provide protection, they also provide warmth in cooler temperatures and wick away perspiration in warmer temperatures.

My second test was in the heat. Yes! This is northern Michigan. The outside temperature for this test was 83 degrees. This time

I cannot stress the safety factor enough. I know we are all looking for comfort and at times we deviate from that safety factor. This gear makes it easy to have ATGATT. The Forcefield Standard Shirt with Armour retails for $295.00, the Pants with Armour are $199.00. See all the other protective and comfortable gear at: www.johnsonleather.com/armor_main.htm.
